Fruitless search for former editor of the Review

By Nicole Smith

Didsbury RCMP are asking for any information that anyone may have concerning Elaine Grace Wilson.

Wilson, 43, has not made contact with anyone since last July, said Sgt. Ron Platz of the Didsbury detachment.

"She's had no communication with her family for quite some time," he said.

Wilson's family reported her missing on Oct. 10. Since then, police have hung missing person posters and placed ads with local newspapers.

Police are focusing on finding Wilson, and do not suspect foul play.

Last Wednesday afternoon, police had a helicopter out scanning the area for any signs of Wilson.

Last Sunday morning, Didsbury Search and Rescue (SAR) were out early doing their search. They searched from 10 St. to the railroad tracks just south of town.

About a dozen SAR members spent almost 10 hours looking for Wilson, but came up with nothing.

"It's now up to the RCMP for the next step," said Greg Hnatuk, a member of Didsbury SAR.

Platz said that the RCMP also searched a field that is across from Wilson's home, to eliminate the possibility of her wandering off or causing harm to herself.

Police have already searched Wilson's trailer and vehicle, which is still parked at her home.

Wilson's father, Ed, says that the family is in a state of turmoil.

They have no idea what may have happened to her.

"We just can't tell you anything more than the police said," he said.

"We're hoping and praying for her."

THE SEARCH BEGINS ...
Didsbury Search and Rescue, led by Constable Don Oltrop, searched south of Didsbury for Elaine Grace Wilson. On Sunday morning about a dozen DSAR members pitched in to look for clues as to Wilson's disappearance.

Wilson worked as the editor of the Didsbury Review for some time a number of years ago.

Wilson is described as 165 cm tall and weighing 76 kg. She has dark brown hair and wears glasses.

Police are asking anyone with information to the whereabouts of Wilson to call them at the Didsbury detachment at 335-3382.

Big changes at the county

By Nicole Smith

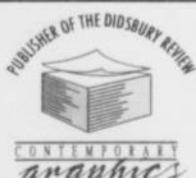

Last week's Mountain View County organizational meeting was filled with a lot of secret ballots and position shifting.

The biggest change was with the position of Reeve for the county.

Councillor Sheila Lockrem nominated Councillor Ian Harvie for the position. Councillor Diane Davies nominated former Reeve, Pat James.

"I've observed Pat James for the past four years and I see this person as being proud of Mountain View County," said Councillor Diane Davies in an address she made to council before the vote. "He's worked hard to develop the good rapport that we enjoy with our towns."

In the courts: Many drunk drivers handed fines

By Colleen Horrigan and Dan Singleton

Man admits hit and run

A 40-year-old Edson man who slammed into two separate vehicles during a hit-and-run incident in Olds has been fined. Ryan Trent Brown pleaded guilty in Didsbury provincial court on Monday to a charge under the Highway Traffic Act of careless driving.

The accused had been scheduled to go to trial on a charge of dangerous operation and three counts of failing to stop at the scene of an accident.

Court heard the accused crashed into two parked vehicles on an Olds street at about 8:30 p.m. on July 9, 1998.

He then went through a playground zone before slamming into two other parked vehicles. He then fled the scene.

Police arrested the man the next day after receiving witness reports on the vehicle's license number.

Brown's defence lawyer said the accused did not remember any of the incident.

Following a joint submission from Crown and defence, Judge James handed the accused a $1,000 fine, the maximum allowed under the act.

Following the sentencing, one of the vehicle owners said he wanted to address Judge James. He then asked, "why does this guy get a break?"

The judge replied: "I understand your exasperation."

Crown prosecutor Gord Wong did not tell the court why he agreed to make the deal on the lesser charge.

Expensive whisky

A 19-year-old Sundre man who stole an $18.95 bottle of rye whisky from a Sundre liquor store has been fined $500.

The accused pleaded guilty in Youth Court to a charge of theft under $5,000. He was a young offender at the time of the February 21, 1998 theft and therefore cannot be identified.

Citing the accused's extensive youth court record - including a 1997 conviction following a brutal assault of a Sundre youth that left the victim in hospital - Judge James handed the accused the heavy fine.

"You need to be reminded that this type of activity is completely unacceptable," said James.

Drunk driver fined

An Olds woman who admitted driving drunk in Olds last summer has been fined.

Janell Marie Thomas, 36, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving with a blood alcohol level greater than 80 mg.

She was stopped in Olds on August 7 after police noticed her driving poorly. Breathalyzer tests indicated her blood alcohol level was 170 mg.

Judge James fined Thomas $750 in Didsbury provincial court Oct. 18.

Impaired driver pleads guilty

An Olds man pleaded guilty to a charge of driving with a blood alcohol level greater than 80 mg.

Michael Boyd, 23, was charged as a result of incidents that took place on Jan. 3, 1999. Crown Prosecutor Gord Wong told the court Oct. 20 that police saw the accused travelling in the area with excess speed on roads of very poor condition due to ice and snow, and that when police pulled over the man's vehicle, they detected signs of impairment.

Boyd's counsel told the court that loss of driver's licence would have a significant impact on his employment.

Judge James sentenced Boyd to a $600 fine to be paid by Dec. 15, 1999, a three-month driving prohibition, and revoked his driver's licence.

Drunk driver caught leaving saloon

Clinton John Raskob, 42, of Water Valley, admitted his guilt to a charge of driving with a blood alcohol level over 80 mg in Didsbury provincial court last Wednesday.

Crown Gord Wong told the court that during routine patrol on Sept. 11, 1999 at approximately 1 a.m., police were driving past the Water Valley Restaurant and Saloon when they noticed the accused driving out of the parking lot.

Raskob, a self-employed welder, told Judge James that "it was just a bad judgement call on my part and I really have got no excuse for driving while I was like that."

Judge James said that due to new provisions as of July 1, 1999, he had to impose a one-year driving prohibition, as well as a $750 fine, adding that Raskob can apply to the province after three months to have his licence returned.

Prisoner pleads guilty following abduction

One of two Bowden penitentiary inmates charged after an Olds girl was taken from her home in April 1998 has been sentenced to 16 months in jail after pleading guilty to a charge of abduction. Gordon Robert Kennedy, 45, entered the plea in Calgary's Court of Queen's Bench on Monday. It was the first day of his scheduled two-week trial.

Kennedy was on a work release program at the time of the abduction. He was arrested in southern Alberta following a country-wide search.

The sentence will run consecutive to any other sentence being served, the court ordered.

A second prisoner, Eric Brian Wannamaker, 51, faces charges of abducting a person under 16 years of age, being unlawfully at large, and sexual assault. His trial continued in Queen's Bench on Tuesday.

Open House for RCMP building to be held soon

By Nicole Smith

The Town of Didsbury wants to hear what the public has to say.

As many Didsburians may well know, the Town of Didsbury and the RCMP have been given the go ahead for a new RCMP detachment building.

The building that currently houses our officers is not big enough to handle their day-to-day operations, so a new building is in the works.

At the regular town council meeting last Wednesday, councillors decided to hold an open house for the public to address any concerns or questions that Didsbury might have.

Councillor Gary Dolha suggested that this would be a good opportunity to let Didsburians see first hand what is being planned.

He said that it would also be a good chance for the Town to listen to what the taxpayers of Didsbury have to say.

The open house is planned for Saturday, Nov. 6 from 10 a.m. to noon at the Didsbury Train Station.

Town officials urge the public to attend and see for themselves what exactly is in the works. It will also give the public a chance to have their questions and concerns responded to.

Hot topics at DHS council meeting

By Colleen Horrigan

Principal Steve Thompson's reports of diploma exam results and a proposal for a new gymnasium were the hottest topics of discussion at the Didsbury High School Council's annual meeting on Oct. 18.

The meeting's agenda also included reports from the Students' Council, the chairman, the treasurer, and elections for the School Council.

Thompson presented graphs of correlated data comparing Didsbury students' diploma exam results with average provincial results.

He noted that while Didsbury's averages were often slightly lower than provincial averages, he was not worried because of Didsbury's often much higher participation rates in the matriculation-level courses. Participation rates refer to the percentage of students enrolled in a particular course, and DHS has a much higher percentage of students enrolled in Math, English and Social Studies 30 with less in the 33-level courses.

While this results in a slightly lower average, it also indicates that DHS has a large percentage of students receiving an education that has prepared them for post-secondary studies.

Also in the principal's report was a proposal that has been submitted to the Chinook's Edge School Division.

Chinook's Edge has allocated $3.3 million as a spending allowance, and the School Council is exploring the possibility of accessing some of this money to fund a new gym for DHS.

A committee worked on a proposal to present to Chinook's Edge, and it included a history of the school's construction and conceptual drawings of where a new gym could be put. One possibility was on the south end of the school, and another was on the east end, attached to the current gym.

Both possibilities focused on the availability of potential for an additional parking lot nearby, as well as the ability to isolate the gym from the school for ease of community and after-hours use of the new facility.

Thompson said that he isn't overly hopeful that this proposal will result in a new gym in the immediate future, but stressed the importance of the proposal to increase the division's awareness of DHS's need for a better gym.

The current facility is too small for a full-size basketball court, has a roof lower than regulation for volleyball and badminton, and is booked by two classes at once the majority of the time.

The elections resulted in Steve Fillmore being re-elected as chairman of the council for another two-year term. Other election results are: vice-chair - Dena Wannamaker, secretary - Darlene Henry, treasurer - Texleen Prokopetz, council members - Bev Biggeman, Jan Myhre and Donna McWhinney. Other members are Sandy Leiper, Nan Volker, and Linda Plewis, who are remaining on council to complete the second half of their two-year terms.

The next School Council meeting will be Nov. 15 at 7 p.m. in the DHS library, and all parents of DHS students are encouraged to attend.

that Mr. James didn't return as Reeve."

After a secret vote, Harvie holds the title of Reeve, bumping James out of the position that he's held for the past four years.

After Harvie took his official oath as County Reeve, he addressed council.

"I'll do my best to endeavour to uphold what this county has achieved," said Harvie.

Next came the nominations for Deputy Reeve. Councillor Dave Derksen nominated Councillor Ben Penner for this position.

Harvie then nominated James for the position, which he declined.

"I'd rather not let my name stand," said James.

Penner then took his oath as Deputy Reeve.

Secret ballots were held for the majority of the appointments to various boards and committees and the public can expect to see new faces at a lot of meetings in the next while.

Borrowing by-law for RCMP detachment discussed

... and other town council notes

Better to borrow less?

First reading was granted to By-law 99-14 at the Oct. 20 town council meeting.

This by-law concerns the borrowing strategy for the new RCMP building, planned to break ground next March.

The estimated cost of the building is $1.1 million. The Town is looking at raising $300,000, so that they only have to borrow $800,000.

Council is also considering paying off old loans at high interest rates and then borrowing the full amount at a rate of 6.25%.

The group is still looking at which way will be more cost effective for the Town of Didsbury.

The council needs to decide how they wish to approach this loan soon, as the deadline of Dec. 15 to request funds from Alberta Municipal Financing Corporation is fast approaching.

Their deadline for final reading of this by-law is Dec. 1.

Council decided to hold an Open House concerning the new RCMP accommodations on Nov.

6 from 10 a.m. to noon at the Didsbury Train Station, so that the public might have a chance to ask questions and raise concerns.

Very organized

Last Wednesday's meeting was the council's official organizational meeting.

Not much organizing went on, as all councillors remained in the same positions as the previous years, some of which include:

Councillors Gary Dolha, Cheryl Dahl and Judy Kaupp will remain on the Corporate Services Committee.

On the Community Services Committee, Councillors Peter Versluyts, Don Watt and Gary Dolha remain.

Councillors Gordon Quantz and Don Watt, along with Mayor Ray Lea, remain on the Operational Services Committee.

Also, Councillor Judy Kaupp remains on the Mountain View Management Board.

Payment policy

With the new By-law Enforcement Officer busy writing tickets, the Town of Didsbury is giving recipients of these tickets a break.

If the fines are paid within three working days of when the ticket was administered, recipients receive a 10% break.

Apparently, other municipalities offer this kind of deal and it works well for them.

The Town decided to use a percentage instead of a dollar figure, as the amount of the fines can vary greatly.

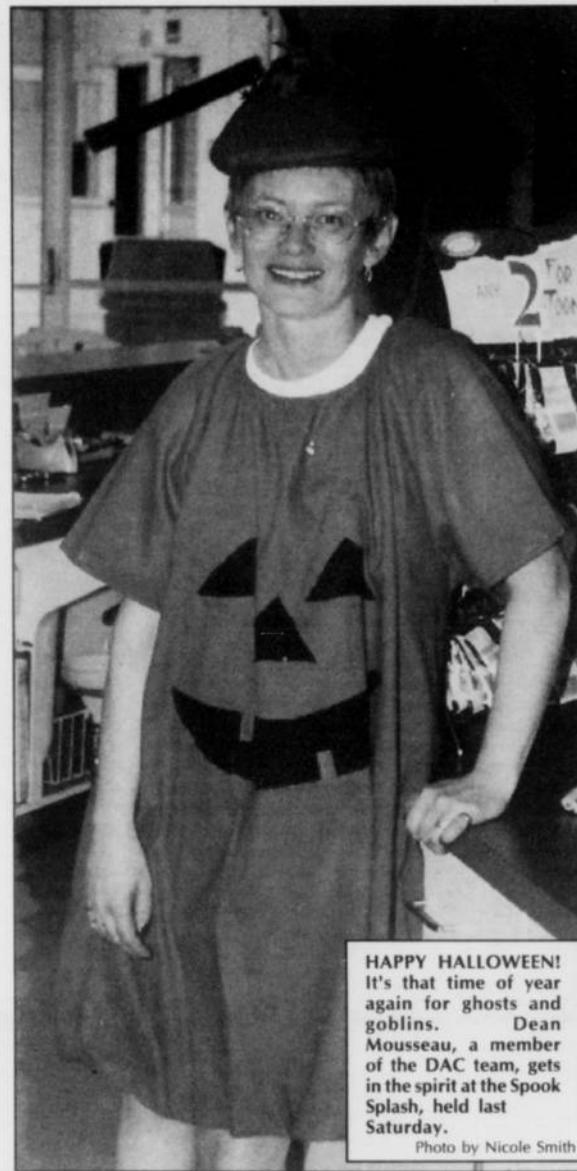

The Town feels that this will be an incentive for people to pay their tickets immediately.

Tourism Seminar

The Town of Didsbury has decided to endorse a Tourism Seminar being planned for Nov. 22 in Didsbury.

Approximately 30 people are expected to attend this comprehensive tourism plan seminar, in the hopes of attracting more visitors to Didsbury.

Economic Development Board Chair Myrna Grimmon approached the Regional Marketing Director of Travel Alberta, Bill Ozard, to make a presentation during the full-day

Lunch is going to be served to the invitees, and the board has asked that $500 be allocated to this cause.

Council agreed to endorse this money to the seminar.

Concerned about the ad

Staff members of the Town of Didsbury have been feeling some concern over who and what goes into the Town of Didsbury's weekly ad in the Didsbury Review.

Council decided that only boards, commissions and committees directly associated with the Town will be allowed to place information within the ad for no charge.

Any other groups will be expected to pay to have their information advertised.

JDFF funding request

The Town has allocated $6,900 to the Just Done For Fun after school care program.

JDFF run a summer program this year which didn't turn out to be as successful as hoped. Enrollment for the program was down considerably from what the group expected.

Because of the poor turnout, JDFF had to use money allocated for their regular year to cover costs of the summer program.

They requested $6,900 from the Town and submitted a comprehensive list of how to avoid future problems like this.

Complete madness!

Town Council moved to endorse a $2,000 contribution to the Christmas Decoration Program for Midnight Madness.

This money will be used to decorate Main Street again this year, as last year was so successful.

Council retreat

The Didsbury Town Council is planning a retreat to Canmore next month.

The group will be spending two days, Nov. 16 and 17, out of town to focus on issues concerning Didsbury.

Veteran's Week

The Town of Didsbury moved to proclaim the week of Nov. 5-11 as Veteran's Week this year.

Big city vs. small town life

Chelsea Bakema

A big city girl meets a small rural town. It's bound to create a story, and curiosity.

Walking around the main street of Didsbury I heard many hi's and hello's and gladly replied. It certainly isn't a common occurrence in Calgary, that's for sure. Don't get me wrong, Calgary has its friendly smiles and hello's, just not on Deerfoot Trail.

The commute to Didsbury from Calgary is a bit of a drive, especially in the morning. But I am willing to admit the drive is thankfully calm.

Bumper to bumper traffic and squealing horns tend to rattle a person's nerves after a while. But being a born city kid has its advantages. You learn defensive driving skills, mace is your best friend, there are beautiful sunsets (carbon dioxide gas hovering above the city lights does wonders), and you can go get any kind of snack food at four o'clock in the morning.

However, I can definitely appreciate small town living. During my two-week stay here I have met lots of people that have laid out the welcome wagon, and a few that lined their's with barbed wire, but I've found that in some ways small towns are very similar to big ones.

For instance, gas is just as expensive here as it is in Calgary, you can go to a restaurant or grocery store and get the same Alberta beef (I think), and people can surprise you, good and bad.

But there is one thing Didsbury has that Calgary doesn't. And he is Cliff Howie, the town candy man. I had the pleasure of meeting him first thing on my first day and he showed me the personable side of what a small town is like. He made me feel welcomed and his generosity amazed me.

So, thank you to all of those who were patient enough to answer my questions and those of you who were kind enough to greet the city kid with a neighbourly smile and a hearty handshake.

Special thanks goes to all the devoted Didsbury Review crew who helped me find my way around, showed me the best places to eat, and gave me a memorable two-week experience. Thank you all very much, you're all the best of what the world has to offer.

Thompson calls for action

Myron THOMPSON

On Tuesday, Oct. 19, Reform MP, Myron Thompson, made the following statement in the House of Commons:

Mr. Speaker, this past weekend the Minister of Agriculture hosted the "Funfest on the Farm", a celebration of the Canadian farmer. Each of my colleagues in the House received this invitation through a glossy package of materials developed by the Minister.

If this is the Minister's response to our farm crisis that almost every Canadian, except this government seems to be aware of, then all hope is lost for our farm communities.

I personally challenge the Minister of Agriculture to hand deliver his pretty calendar to a farm family who will literally earn less than nothing this year. For the western farmer about to lose the land that's been in his family for generations there is no "Funfest on his farm".

Since June, the Minister has repeatedly said the AIDA program is almost complete. I realize that the farm community only represents 3% of Canadians, but let's hope they receive some assistance before next October's "Funfest on the farm".

Since the Agriculture Minister claims he really wants to promote and support agriculture he should stop wasting taxpayers' dollars on glossy brochures and start taking action to help the family farm. Not once did I hear agriculture mentioned in the Throne Speech.

If the Liberals are suddenly interested in agriculture, instead of throwing a party in Ottawa they should be dealing with issues such as the WTO talks, the Kroeger report, and enabling entrepreneurial initiative in value-added processing.

The Agriculture Minister and his Liberal buddies should take this as a direct challenge - it's time they roll up their sleeves and get to work.

Ponderings of the heart

More lessons to be learned

By Margaret Fradley

Some time ago, I was crossing the street, in the crosswalk, and had just reached the curb when I noticed someone waving at me from their car. Now, instead of stopping in my tracks to see who it was, I continued to walk and wave at the same time. I know better!

This proved a foolish move, as I tripped over the curb, staggered ungracefully for about one quarter of a block trying to regain my balance, but finally fell headlong onto the sidewalk.

Immediately a kind motorist passing by came to my aid, offering to help. After assessing the situation I felt I was alright but needed help getting up. This kindly stranger helped me up and offered me a ride.

After getting to my feet, I thanked the stranger who had so quickly and willingly come to my aid. His response was, "you're welcome, anytime." Secretly, however, I hoped there would not be too many more "anytimes".

People are so good, so willing to stop and help out where they can.

My gratitude for the help I received that day overcame the need to deal with all the bruises, aches and pains, and stiffness I endured the following weeks.

When will I ever learn?

Did you know?

By-law 94-8 (dog control by-law) Section 3: all dogs 6 months and older, in the Town of Didsbury, must be licensed.

- License fee for each neutered or spayed dog - $15.
- License fee for each unaltered dog - $30.

Owners of unlicensed dogs are guilty of an offence, the fine being $75.

Section 4: an owner whose dog barks or howls thereby disturbing the quiet or repose of another person is guilty of an offence, the fine being $100.

Alberta urges federal government to act quickly on grain transportation and handling reforms

The government of Alberta is urging the federal government to proceed immediately with reforms to the Canadian grain handling and transportation system. Ed Stelmach, Minister of Alberta Infrastructure, sent a letter to David Collenette, Federal Minister of Transport, indicating the provincial government is pleased with the direction of Federal appointee Arthur Kroeger's report on the system.

Alberta supports the approach recommended in the Estey Review on grain transportation, and feels the report submitted by Mr. Kroeger to Mr. Collenette is in line with Justice Estey's original intentions. Alberta Infrastructure (formerly Alberta Transport and Utilities) and Alberta Agriculture, Food and Rural Development (AAFRD) have been active participants in the federal review process since 1997.

Minister Ed Stelmach and AAFRD Minister Ty Lund feel the reforms should be moved forward quickly and simultaneously, so that changes can be implemented for the next crop year.

Both Alberta Ministers expressed their thanks to the working groups and to Mr. Kroeger for committing their time and efforts to bringing these recommendations to the attention of the federal government.

Recommendations presented by children's forum participants:

A number of recommendations were made to government by Albertans participating in the first Children's Forum at the Shaw Conference Centre in Edmonton. Chaired by Colleen Klein, the Children's Forum was held to begin a dialogue with Albertans on how to improve the lives and futures of Alberta's children. The two-day event attracted about 1,000 people over the weekend of Oct. 5-6.

Recommendations include:

- Create a more equitable funding process and a common sense approach for services to children and youth.
- Develop one-stop violence prevention programs that are comprehensive and regionally based.
- Establish a provincial network to effectively address the impact of substance abuse on children and youth.
- Develop a comprehensive approach to sexual health education in Alberta.
- Move on ideas generated as quickly as possible.

The Children's Forum final report is expected to be completed by the end of the year. The report will include short and long-term priorities and recommendations on how these priorities can best be achieved.

Albertans who did not attend the Children's Forum are still able to provide their views. Comments may be forwarded through the Children's Forum website at www.childrensforum.gov.ab.ca, by phone at (780) 415-0085 or by fax at (780) 415-0651. Written submissions may be forwarded to First Circle - Uniting for Children, 11th floor, Seventh Street Plaza, 10030-107 Street, Edmonton, Alberta T5J 3E4.

The Children's Forum will be an annual event to review and measure progress on priority areas.

Year 2000: Alberta Government prepares for new millennium:

Critical provincial government computer systems are considered almost 100% ready for the Year 2000, according to a government Y2K readiness status report released Oct. 8, 1999.

The report, released by Lorne Taylor, Minister of Innovation and Science, indicates that as of Oct. 7, 1999, 97% of the computer systems considered to be "mission critical", or vital to the province's operations, are Y2K compliant. Work is still underway on all remaining systems to be ready before the end of the year.

Critical systems include those responsible for government grants and payment, environmental monitoring, student records, taxation and financial systems, and health care issues tracking. In total, 160 systems have been identified as mission critical. The remainder of government applications not considered critical to providing services to the public are also being remedied, with plans for completion before the end of 1999.

The government's Chief Information Officer, Robb Stoddard, whose office is overseeing the coordination of Y2K readiness across government, said the government is well-prepared as it has been working on Y2K readiness since the issue was first recognized in 1996.

In addition to its internal efforts to ensure all government systems are Y2K ready, the provincial government has also been sharing information with the province's essential service providers through the Y2K Alberta group. More than 50 essential service providers including utilities, health care providers, emergency organizations and municipalities are working together and sharing information on the Y2K status of their systems to minimize the potential impact of Y2K on Albertans.

Legislature to resume sitting on Nov. 17:

The fall session of the Alberta legislature will begin sitting on Wednesday, Nov. 17, 1999. Premier Ralph Klein announced the opening date on his province-wide radio show, "Talk to the Premier."

On Oct. 1, the Premier sent a letter to the Speaker of the Legislature to formally request that the legislature convene on Nov. 17.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the following people for all their generosity, help and hard work in taking the crop off for us this year. It's greatly appreciated knowing we have such wonderful friends and neighbors who were willing to take time out of their own busy schedule to come over and help in a time of need.

Thank you very much to Parkland Agri Services for supplying us with grain trucks, grain bins for storage and for supper for everyone.

Thank you very much to the local farmers for the use of their swathers, combines, grain trucks, tractors, augers and balers which were all supplied with drivers.

Thank you: Tom Hunter, Claude & John Trenholm, Devon & Kathy Archer, Dave & Kelvin Archer, Jack Brander & Sons, Bill & Anthony Venerman, Mel Dodd, Tom Clark, Shane, Graham & Chris Collinge, Neil Lunden, Rod Hannah, Charlie Allan Kohut, Gordie & Ron Sorenson, Jack Clarke, Ron Hunter, Brian Penner, Vern & Shane McMann, Doug & Walter Pratt, Weidmer Family, Duane Weber, Ralph & Rod Snyder and Frank Kohut.

A Special Thank you to Bill & Shirley Ahlgren and family for the supper the second night of harvest and most of all, for the guidance and support we have received during this hard time.

Our heartfelt thanks to everyone,
Joanna, Kyle & Justin Gebers

Sincerely, Dan and Janet

FROM THE MAILBAG

Move ahead with reforms

Dear Mr. Collenette,

Alberta entered the federal review process and the Estey/Kroeger debate in 1997 with several objectives in mind. The first was to decrease costs to farmers by promoting competition and producer choices in the grain handling and transportation system, while establishing greater accountability to improve overall system performance. We also wanted to promote a customer oriented, demand-driven grain handling and transportation system that enhanced international competitiveness for the benefit of producers. Finally, we promoted the adoption of modern logistics practices in the grain handling and transportation system. The recommendations from Estey/Kroeger are consistent with these provincial objectives.

It is the view of the government of Alberta that the way to achieve a system that will benefit farmers is to provide choices for farmers at the farm gate. The choices are a result of greater competition, and it is the competition that produces the savings for farmers. For farmers to benefit, it is critical that all aspects of the total grain handling and transportation system become more competitive. This must include tendering a major portion of the CWB sales commitments, along with a greater focus on intramodal railway competition and greater competition among grain companies and export terminals.

The Alberta government believes that it is time to move away from the status quo and take a new approach to serving our customers. The existing system has not met customer expectations several times over the last few years. Further, from a farmer perspective the system is still high cost and retains open-ended liability. Incorporated as part of the Estey, and now Kroeger, reports are recommendations that would provide the type of system that would benefit farmers, while also ensuring that we remain competitive in the international marketplace.

It is Alberta's view that, in the long term, competition is preferable to regulation for maintaining reasonable freight costs for shippers and producers. The revenue cap is an important measure to protect farmers until rail competition develops. Stakeholders identified greater intramodal railway competition as a prerequisite to a restructured logistics system and we support that theme. Also required is enhanced protection for shippers. This can be accommodated through changes to competitive access provisions and by an enhanced Final Offer Arbitration process, as recommended by Estey/Kroeger. We urge the federal government to quickly undertake the review of competitive access provisions made by Mr. Kroeger so that these provisions can be incorporated along with other system changes for the start of the 2000-2001 crop year.

Finally, in terms of promoting competition within the total system we strongly support the conclusions of both Justice Estey and Mr. Kroeger that Canadian Wheat Board (CWB) sales, as a general rule, should be tendered at port. This would allow the grain companies and the railways to directly negotiate bilateral agreements which would provide the necessary capacity assurances that the CWB insists are required to successfully market grain on behalf of western Canadian farmers. The Kroeger recommendation on a tendering approach is consistent with the Feb. 8, 1999 letter forwarded to Minister Collenette collectively by western transportation ministers representing all four western provinces.

The railways, grain companies, terminals, and the Canadian Wheat Board are partners, along with farmers, in the grain handling and transportation system. They must rely upon each other and respect their particular areas of expertise. The lack of trust in the system must be overcome. The Canadian Wheat Board in particular, must rely upon the assurances of the railways and grain companies that capacity will be available when required.

In summary, the government of Alberta urges the federal government to move ahead with the recommended reforms that are so urgently required in the grain system. Alberta remains committed to working with organizations and farm groups to ensure that the Estey/Kroeger recommendations are implemented effectively, for the benefit of farmers and other stakeholders.

Sincerely,
Ed Stelmach
Minister

Wave of silence

Dear Editor,

In just a few weeks we will turn the final page on a century and a millennium. It is only natural that we reflect on the past and look to the future. Living in Canada today, it is easy to forget that the 20th Century has been one of the most violent periods in human history.

From the World Wars in the first half of the century to NATO operations in the former Yugoslavia, more than 1.4 million Canadians have volunteered to serve in our military and merchant navy and more than 116,000 have given their lives. As the number of veterans and survivors gradually falls, it is up to all of us to make sure that their sacrifices are not forgotten.

This Remembrance Day will be a special one. On the 11th day of the 11th month, at 11 a.m. there will be silence. The Royal Canadian Legion and Veterans Affairs Canada are asking all Canadians simply to pause for two minutes. Radio and TV signals will stop, shops and businesses, factories and farms will be still. Canadians will be able to take a few moments to think about war, about peace, and about those who gave up everything for us. The silence will begin in Newfoundland, and sweep across the country like a wave as 11 a.m. strikes in each time zone.

Silence is rare and dramatic in our noisy world, so the Wave of Silence will be an eloquent national event that will help us keep faith with our past and demonstrate our hope for peace in the new millennium.

I will be participating in the 2-Minute Wave of Silence and encourage all Canadians to take part, where safety and practicality allow. Wherever you are at 11 a.m. on Nov. 11, please pause in what you are doing for a couple of minutes. It will be two minutes well-spent, before the minutes of the millennium run out.

Sincerely,
Chuck Murphy
Dominion President

Relay 2000: Start a ripple effect in Didsbury

By Nicole Smith

Celebrations and parties are been planned worldwide for the upcoming millennium.

Most people think that because we are coming to the end of the 20th century, such celebrations have to be big, real big.

Plans are the in the works for a Canadian celebration that will include over 800 communities across Canada, have around 5,000 participants, cover over 15,000 km and utilize three oceans.

The Trans Canada Trail Relay 2000 is the brainchild of many organizations, corporations and non-profit groups across our country, and is thought by some to be the biggest and most dynamic of all millennium celebrations.

A delegation was held at last Wednesday's town council meeting to present the Relay 2000 idea.

Joanne Paulenko, the Community Animator for the province of Alberta, was in attendance to get support from council for the relay.

Relay 2000 will start in April of next year at all three oceans surrounding Canada: the Pacific Ocean, the Atlantic Ocean and the Arctic Ocean.

Water will be taken from the three bodies of water and carried along the trail, until it reaches its final destination of Ottawa, Ontario on Sept. 9, 2000 and will be poured into a football field-sized fountain across from the Parliament building.

The close to 5,000 carriers will be utilizing many modes of transportation, including walking, running, dogsledding, horseback riding, snowmobiling and in-line skating.

"It's a relay that is accessible to people of all ages," Paulenko said.

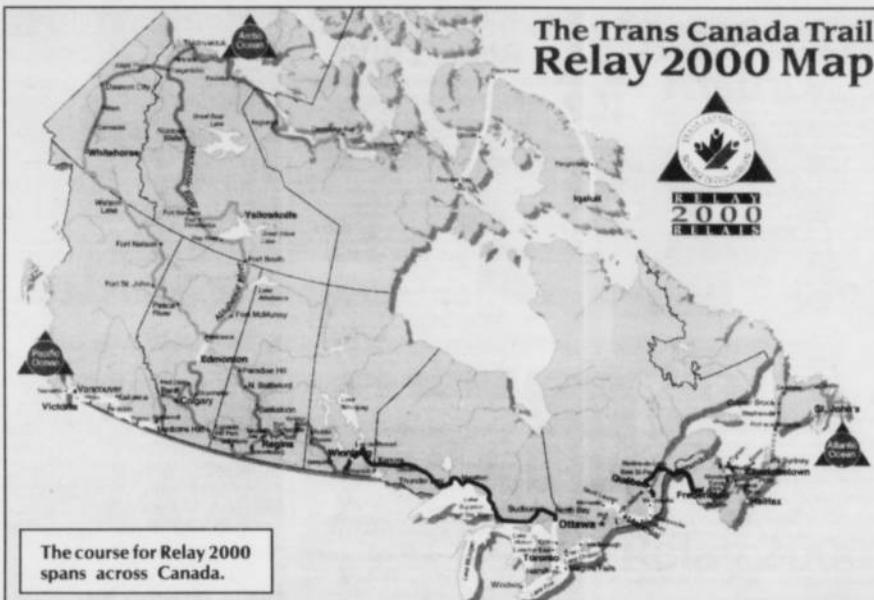

Relay 2000 is expected to come through Didsbury on May 12 of next year.

Paulenko asked town council to consider what type of celebration and greetings our town would like to offer the water carriers. She also asked that they provide a list of VIP water carriers to participate in the relay.

"It's really an opportunity to use Relay 2000 to foster your own efforts," she told council.

"No event is too big or too small."

Paulenko also said that any members of our community are welcome to apply to become an official water carrier.

Forms are available at Town Office for anyone interested in being part of this huge event.

Paulenko says that interested individuals are asked to fill out the form and list their first and second choice for the activities in which they wish to participate, mail it, along with a $12 processing fee, to the address on the form.

The water carriers will be selected from all applicants and will be notified by January 31, 2000.

Halloween safety tips

Halloween is a fun and exciting time for children. However, children can be hurt if safety rules aren't followed. Safe Kids Canada, a national non-profit organization, works to prevent injuries by providing safety information to the public. Here are Safe Kids Canada's tips for a safe Halloween:

Costumes:

- Make sure that drivers can see your child. Use costumes with bright fabrics and decorate costumes with reflective tape. Give each child a flashlight to carry.
- To prevent falling, your child's costume and shoes should fit properly. Costumes should not be longer than your child's ankles.
- If you are making a costume, use materials that are fire resistant. If you are buying a costume, make sure it is labelled flame resistant. This means that the costume could catch fire, but it will resist burning. Avoid costumes with loose sleeves, pants, and skirts.
- All costume accessories such as swords or knives should be made of soft, flexible material.
- Your child should wear face paint or make-up instead of a mask. Make-up and face paint are better than masks because they don't block your child's ability to see. If your child is wearing a hat, wig, or scarf, tie it securely so that it won't slip over your child's eyes.

When trick or treating:

- Children under nine years of age should be supervised by an adult when trick or treating. Children over nine years of age should trick or treat with an adult or in a group with older, responsible children.

• If your child is trick or treating without an adult, make sure he or she knows how to cross the road safely.

• Children should walk, not run, from house to house and stay on the sidewalk or at the side of the road facing traffic.

• Children should stay in well-lit areas and should only visit homes that have their outside lights turned on. Children should not go inside homes.

• Before your children eat their candy, make sure you examine it. Throw out any treats that are not wrapped, those in torn or loose packages, or any that have small holes in the wrappers.

Decorating your home:

- Small children should never carve pumpkins. Instead, let your child draw a face on the pumpkin.
- Make your home safe for trick or treaters. Remove all objects around the outside of your home that could cause children to trip or fall. Turn your outside light on.
- Keep candles, pumpkins with candles, matches and lighters in a place that children cannot reach.
- If you use a candle in your pumpkin, make sure you put the pumpkin on a sturdy table. Keep the pumpkin away from curtains and other objects that could catch fire.

When driving on Halloween:

- Be extra careful when driving. Children are excited and may forget safety rules.
- When driving in areas with children, slow down and watch for them.
- Enter and exit driveways and alleyways slowly and pay extra attention.

At The Kitchen Table

Last summer when Ralph and I were driving north of Olds on 2A, we passed what is probably the most spectacular display of peonies in Canada. Row upon row of whites, pinks, reds and magentas, singles, doubles, fern leaf, shrub and probably tree, they were magnificent and breathtaking. There are acres of them and it was so beautiful that my poor mortal mind could not take it in. It is Buck Godwin's place of course, who else would have the energy, dedication and knowledge to build something so beautiful. We stopped, apologetically, because we knew he would be busy and we didn't have an appointment but Mr. Godwin found a few minutes to show us the amazing drying facilities, some of the work in progress and then allowed us to go have a look at the peonies themselves. They are so beautiful and so vast that it is mind boggling, you get a feeling of unreality, it's like something from a dream.

Peonies probably originated in the Mediterranean region and probably began as bright red single blooms. Chinese and Japanese gardeners bred and refined them and their breeding continues. Garden catalogues carry new varieties every year and you can choose from singles, singles with prominent centres, semi-doubles, and doubles. Some are fragrant, some are not and even the fragrances vary, some smell like a rose, some are spicy. The newest pinks have silver-edged petals and "long considered impossible" they now have a true yellow with a flashy red centre.

A new peony will take about three years to reach its full potential but once established it will grow happily in the same place for a hundred years. The blooms will be bigger and showier if the plant is in well-drained, weed free, cultivated soil, but I have seen peonies growing out of grass and in the windswept, dry and dusty Chinook Cemetery a quite lovely peony grows on one of the graves. Peonies are one of the hardiest, most weather tolerant and longest lived plants. They make beautiful cut flowers. There are a couple of disadvantages, they really need to be staked and if you don't deadhead religiously your flowerbeds will look like the aftermath of a chicken plucking convention.

Peonies are named for Paeon, a legendary physician who used them to cure Gods who were wounded in the Trojan war. My book doesn't say how he did this, but it does say that peonies were used medicinally from Homeric times down to the seventeenth century. The roots of the peony were believed to cure insanity when hung about a lunatic's neck. An antispasmodic tonic can be steeped from its roots and that's probably where the idea came from. The peony's other supposed virtues include protecting shepherds and their flocks, warding off storms, demons and nightmares and preserving the harvest from damage. In the language of flowers peony means "bashful".

Mom Olsen had several peonies and I have added several more but many of them grew on the outside of a big flower bed and because their size impaired the growth of plants between them and the fence. For years we talked about moving them and meanwhile I kept adding another here and there. A lovely dark red double from Gracie Duff, Ev Robertson's double, double pink, yellow centred magenta singles from Grandma Bird, (one of which I unaccountably planted behind an orange tiger lily). This fall, and inspired by Buck Godwin, we have finally begun to move the peonies.

Our vegetable garden is too big anyway and if we take a row or two for peonies and keep the soil worked on either side they should do very well. Ralph's sister Marie has given us an early Christmas present of four wonderful new varieties and we have dug and split and borrowed and transplanted until there are now 37 plants. I have at least six more to move and I find myself poring over seed catalogues and Lois Holes Gardening Guides. We will never match the glory of Godwin but in a couple of years it should be awfully pretty out there and if I get behind with the deadheading the fallen petals won't be smothering the pansies.

Volunteers needed

The Home Help Services Association is gearing up for another year and is in dire need of more volunteers.

These volunteers would help many seniors in the area, by helping out around their homes and providing companionship for them, so that are able to continue living in their own homes.

A meeting is being held on Oct. 28 at 9:30 a.m. at the Anglican Church and everyone is invited to attend.

For more information you can contact Lona Bronee at 337-3034.

New superintendent for Koinonia schools

By April C.D. Barton

Long-time Didsbury resident Sharon Quantz has been named as the new superintendent of schools for the Koinonia Christian Education Society (KCES).

Married, and the mother of two grown sons, Sharon holds a Masters Degree in Administration, Curriculum and Instruction.

Well known in the Central Alberta area, Mrs. Quantz taught upper elementary grades at Olds Koinonia Christian School for 14 years and received the provincial award for excellence in teaching in 1990.

For the past three years she has been freelancing her skills throughout the Koinonia School system as an educational consultant focusing on professional development for teachers. During that time she has also created a private business offering seminars on writing.

Despite her busy schedule, Mrs. Quantz has remained active teaching youth, offering home-schoolers accredited writing courses and demonstrating lessons in the classrooms she visits.

In her new position, she will be serving more than 1,000 Koinonia students stretching from Bow Island to Yellowknife, NWT in the Koinonia Christian Education Society's nine schools.

"I don't consider myself a leader, but neither did Moses," Mrs. Quantz remarked.

"I made myself available and God has seen fit to use me."

Mrs. Quantz has been hired on a one-year term, which will be re-evaluated by both the KCES board and herself in the fall of 2000.

Some of her varied responsibilities will involve being a communications link between the school and the overall board, extensive public relations and being a government liaison for KCES.

"My own vision is in line with the people involved" (within the society), "building stronger from competence to excellence," she says. "My strengths lie in professional development of the teachers," as an educator-superintendent.

"One of my goals is to make sure we are giving a very excellent quality of education to the whole student, involving the Christian/spiritual aspect as well."

Mrs. Quantz succeeds Dennis Punter who served KCES for seven years and is now the director of Rivers Edge Camping Ministries at Cremona.

4-H can make a difference for many children

For more than 80 years, Alberta's 4-H program has worked to meet the challenges of the agriculture and food industry. This year, National 4-H Week is being celebrated Nov. 1 to 7, 1999.

"The recent Measures of Success study looked at the impact of the 4-H program in Canada," says Carol Sullivan, provincial 4-H media and marketing specialist with Alberta Agriculture, Food and Rural Development. "It proved what industry leaders have known for years: 4-H gives youth the edge to compete in today's world. The study showed that 4-H alumni are better educated, more often employed and much more often employed in the agriculture and food industry. They report substantially higher incomes than the national average for Canadians and are also more involved in community organizations."

4-H projects and personal development programs give youth the opportunity to learn about conservation, the environment, technology, life skills and livestock. Add leadership, communication and boardroom skills to the mix and 4-H'ers have what employees are seeking.

"Together with their volunteer leaders, 4-H members, nine to 20 years old, pursue the 4-H motto Learn To Do By Doing as they participate in challenging and fun club activities and 4-H projects," adds Sullivan. "Alberta Treasury Branches will be showcasing the work of Alberta 4-H'ers with local 4-H Club displays."

One thing that really annoys me is when people neglect to identify themselves or mention my name when calling. Equally aggravating is the fact that I consistently assume that if people don't identify themselves it must be because I know them well or that their voice is so distinctive I will instantly recognize it. These assumptions can lead to some very embarrassing conversations.

One day a female called, said hi, and immediately asked how I was. She then proceeded to talk about very innocuous things such as the weather, her garden, and the children. I struggled valiantly to recognize the voice. After a few moments of listening to the voice I determined that it must be one of my closest friends, Jennifer. The voice then asked, "Well, are you all set?" Having made the assumption that it was Jennifer, I figured she was referring to my upcoming surgery. Feeling more relaxed and ready for a chat, I launched into a discussion describing, at length, all the very personal preparations and procedures involved in getting ready for my hospital stay.

After a few moments I noticed that the voice at the other end of the line had become silent. This was puzzling. I reverted to a state of confusion again. "Are you still there?" I asked. I needed some kind of interaction.

"Uhh...yes," came a halting reply.

"You seem so quiet," I responded. "Is something wrong?"

"No," replied the voice. "It's just that I didn't know you were having surgery. It certainly sounds gruesome. When I asked if you were all set, I was talking about your trip to Europe."

Europe? Now I was thoroughly perplexed. I wasn't going to Europe!! Jennifer knew all about my upcoming surgery. Why was she saying she didn't know I was going into the hospital? And what was all this nonsense about Europe? I finally steeled myself to ask the question I should have asked initially. "Jennifer, is that you?"

"No, it's Gloria." Gloria?? I didn't even know a Gloria. I had been chatting for approximately fifteen minutes to a perfect stranger, disclosing intimate details about my life. I felt totally humiliated. Gloria then read off a telephone number and asked if this was the number she had reached. It wasn't. She had accidentally dialled the wrong number and now both of us were embarrassed, all because she had not identified herself initially or mentioned my name. Compounding the problem was the fact that I had not asked who was calling.

The call ended quickly, but I did admit to Gloria that those fifteen minutes had been interesting, to say the least. I learned a lesson from this experience. Next time I won't be quite as forthcoming with personal information until I know to whom the voice belongs.

Moral: When the bell tolls, make sure the voice has the right ring to it.

Rowanlea stock dog trial a success

To promote the working ability of the Border Collie, Jean Walker, one of the original members of the Alberta Stock Dog Association, promoted the Rowanlea Stock Dog Trial the latter part of September.

Despite the cooler weather, a good showing of dogs entered, coming from Brooks, Delia, north as far as Innisfail, the Calgary area and Water Valley.

Murray Young, the judge, who did an excellent job of judging, also helped the beginning dogs and handlers as the sheep were challenging and did present problems that can arise in any situation when handling stock.

Recommendation was given by a director of the Stock Dog Association that next year this should be a two-day trial with one day being a field trial.

Grade 9 students will be participating in the nationwide Take Our Kids to Work Day, which will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 3. Forms have gone home with students. It is very important they be returned to the school as soon as possible.

Also, registration forms are now overdue. Another reminder to parents to please return the pink registration forms and the yellow computer usage forms to the office as soon as possible.

Just a reminder that we have several Halloween events taking place. On Thursday the Senior Drama Class is putting on a play entitled "Election Day in Spooksville". The play will be followed by a "Freaky Fashion Show" organized by the Students' Council. The production will begin approximately 2 p.m. Parents are welcome to attend.

The Grade 9 girls' and boys' volleyball teams played against Koinonia on Thursday, Oct. 21. The girls won two out of five games and the boys won one of their five games. They played well against the stronger Koinonia teams. Both teams play Thursday, Oct. 28 in Cremona. They will also be playing in an all-day tournament in Olds on Oct. 30.

The senior volleyball teams are hosting a tournament on Oct. 30. Come out and cheer them on!

There is no school this Friday, Oct. 29, as teachers will be attending the Regional Professional Development Day.

Have a safe and happy Halloween!

Focus on the Family

James C. Dobson, PH. D., is founder and president of Focus on the Family, a non-profit organization dedicated to the preservation of the home. Dr. Dobson is married, the father of two grown children, and resides in Colorado. For 14 years he was an associate clinical professor of pediatrics and the university of Southern California School of Medicine, and served for 17 years on the attending staff of the Childrens' Hospital of Los Angeles. He has also been heavily involved in governmental activities relating to the preservation of the family.

QUESTION: I have great fear that my baby will die when I put her in her crib. What is known about now about sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS)? Have researchers figured out what causes these tragic cases where seemingly healthy babies die while sleeping?

DR. DOBSON: Sudden infant death syndrome is still a major concern, killing about 6,000 babies each year in the United States alone. We do know more, however, about the circumstances that are often associated with this terrible event. A study was conducted by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission with the collaboration of researchers at the University of Maryland and the Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis. The results were presented at a meeting of the Society for Pediatric Research in 1996.

The epidemiologist who directed the investigation, Dr. N.J. Scheers, said, "We have not found a cause of SIDS, but our results show that specific items of bedding used in the U.S., such as comforters and pillows, were associated with an increased risk for death to prone-sleeping infants whose faces became covered, compared to infants on their sides or backs without soft bedding under them."

It was concluded that babies placed on their stomachs in soft bedding are more likely to re-breathe their own carbon dioxide that is trapped in the blankets and pillows around them. About 30 percent of the 206 SIDS deaths in the research project were found with bedding pressed against their noses and mouths. Most of them were under 4 months old and could not extricate themselves.

The advice now being offered by doctors is that parents place their infants on their backs, not on their stomachs, and that a minimum amount of loose bedding be kept in the crib. Following this advice won't eliminate all cases of SIDS, but it could save thousands of lives every year.

QUESTION: My husband's parents are wonderful people and we love them very much. They have always refrained from interfering in our family -- that is, until our daughter was born. Now they're arguing with us about how we're raising her and undermining the things we're trying to teach. We want to base Amy's upbringing on biblical principles, but not being Christians, my in-laws don't really understand this. How can we deal with this situation without offending them?

DR. DOBSON: It is time to have a loving but candid conversation with your in-laws about how your child will be raised. I would suggest that you take them to dinner some evening during which this topic will be addressed. When the moment is right, tell them of your concerns. Make it clear that you love them and want them to enjoy their granddaughter. But the responsibility for how she is being managed must rest entirely with you and your husband.

Remind them that they had their day, when the decisions about child rearing were theirs alone.

Spell out the issues that mean the most to you, including your desire to raise your daughter according to Christian principles. Try to help them understand your reasons, but recognize that their worldview might make it impossible for them to agree. If that is the case, they'll need to honor your wishes anyway.

It is likely that sparks will fly during this conversation. If so, try to remain calm and stand your ground. If the worst occurs and the dinner ends in an emotional walkout, I suggest that you give your in-laws some space while they're cooling off.

When you do come back together, let love and respect continue to be your guide -- but don't back off on the issue at hand.

You have the right to do what you're doing. Your in-laws are the ones who are out of line. But remember that Amy needs her grandparents, and your goal should be to harmonize your relationship. In most cases, that will occur in time.

Gospel concert coming to Calgary at end of month

Reimer Promotions is pleased to present Poet Voices and The Greenes in a special matinee performance on Saturday, Oct. 30 at 2 p.m. at Foothills Alliance Church in Calgary.

With sell-out crowds at the National Quartet Convention in Red Deer this summer, along with the fourth consecutive year of capacity crowds at the Southern Gospel Weekender at Camp Harmattan in August, it's obvious that southern gospel music has found a loyal and growing following in western Canada. Once again, fans have the opportunity to be entertained and inspired by two of southern gospel music's finest groups - Poet Voices and The Greenes.

Poet Voices was nominated for the 1999 Dove Award for Southern Gospel Song and Album of the Year.

With critically-acclaimed songwriter, Phil Cross, as lead singer, this innovative quartet touches audiences across North America with their message of encouragement and faith.

Solid four-part harmony, along with the talented accompaniment of keyboardist, Channing Eleton, made Poet Voices a crowd favourite at the Southern Gospel Weekender in 1998.

Recognized as one of southern gospel music's most popular trios, The Greenes have brought musical versatility to concert stages and churches across America for almost two decades. Recently, the two Greene brothers, Tony and Tim, have been joined by exceptionally talented, 18-year-old TaRanda Kiser. With such chart-topping songs as "Jesus has a Rocking Chair" and "In the Twinkling of an Eye", southern gospel music fans can expect a musical experience that will be both enjoyable and uplifting.

Reimer Promotions is committed to bringing the best in quality southern gospel music to southern Alberta.

Don't miss your chance to see Poet Voices and The Greenes in concert on Saturday, Oct. 30, 1999, 2 p.m. at Foothills Alliance Church (333 Edgepark Blvd. NW Calgary).

Tickets can be purchased at Blessings Christian Marketplace and Christian Publications (downtown and Avenida) in Calgary, Lighthouse Music and Books in High River, Gospel Books & Music in Red Deer, The Mustard Seed in Olds, and Bernard Callebaut Chocolates (500-4th Ave. S.) in Lethbridge.

South West Didsbury news

By Mrs. Bessie Eckstrand

The Didsbury area said goodbye to another old-timer, Jessie Petersen, who passed away in the Olds Hospital Oct. 11, 1999, at the age of 84 years.

The funeral was held at Knox United Church on Friday, Oct. 15 with Rev. Malcolm Proffitt officiating. Internment was in the Didsbury Cemetery. Lunch was served by Knox U.C.W.

Jessie was born Nov. 16, 1914 at Zella, AB to parents Alex and Margaret Ross. Jessie grew up in the area and married Nels Petersen in 1942. They lived and farmed in the Harmattan area until Nels passed away in 1960, and then Jessie moved to Didsbury, where she remained until her passing.

She leaves to mourn her two children - Margaret Johnson of Didsbury and Bob Petersen and wife Mary-Anne of Carmangay, four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren, and her sister Annie Coush of Olds.

Jessie was a long-time member of Knox United Church and loved making shortbread and plush toys for teas, bazaars and family. She was always a jolly and generous person and will be sadly missed.

Ronald and Caroline Olsen sold their acreage at Westcott and moved to Didsbury on the weekend of Oct. 15, 16 and 17. Best wishes folks, and hope you like town life.

The coffee party at Westcott Hall on Oct. 13 was well attended and all enjoyed visiting and eating of course.

Dates to note:

* The next coffee party will be held Nov. 10 with Trudy Robertson and Karen Baudistel as hostesses.

* Theatre night will be on Nov. 13 so get your tickets folks, for a nice evening of entertainment.

Most of the harvesting has been completed, garden produce has been gathered, and calves are being weaned and sold. Fall suppers are starting so everything seems to be shaping up for the winter ahead.

Judy Newsome

In an attempt to see some of the tax money the province collects given back and used to the benefit of Albertans, the Alberta Chambers of Commerce, along with over 80 other organizations and municipalities, have adopted a resolution to increase the province's investment in tourism marketing.

According to Judy Newsome from the Chamber of Commerce, Didsbury is in the middle of creating a marketing plan, and increased funds to the area of tourism could substantially affect the local economy by bolstering Didsbury's ability to promote itself globally.

Newsome says the specific tax money being targeted is the provincial room tax that is collected every time a hotel room in Alberta is paid for, which was originally meant to be allotted for the marketing and promotion of tourism in Alberta, but is right now going into general coffers.

This resolution suggests that about half of this money should be earmarked as regional, and go back into communities through grants or direct funding for the promotion of tourism.

Newsome says that next to agriculture, tourism is a very big industry here and things like global availability on the Internet can draw tourism to the area.

A key part of this resolution is the participation of citizens, and supporters have a few options to get their voices heard.

There is an Internet address that allows you to instantly e-mail a pre-written letter of support to your MLA, or there are similar forms available at the Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber also has a list of relevant questions and topics available if you wish to discuss the issue in detail with your MLA.

To show support for an increase in Alberta's investment in tourism marketing, you can visit the Chamber of Commerce, which is open Mondays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to noon and 1-4 p.m., or visit the following website: www.chamber.calgary.ab.ca/policyppr/support_letter.html.

Sheila Taylor

Rodeo bound

Miss Rodeo Airdrie Sheila Taylor is preparing herself for some tough competition at the Canadian Finals Rodeo, where she will be vying for the title of Miss Rodeo Canada.

Taylor, who grew up west of Didsbury and graduated from DHS in 1997, has been competing for about two years. She first became the Sundre princess then was crowned Miss Rodeo Airdrie July 1, 1999.

After her high school graduation, Taylor took courses in Red Deer and now works in Olds as a massage therapist.

Taylor, who is now 20, says her family has been very involved and supportive, and that her parents come to all the rodeos with her.

Along with seven other finalists, Taylor will travel to Edmonton Nov. 3 where she will be including public speaking, a written rodeo test, horsemanship, and a fashion show at West Edmonton Mall. The finalists will also have a photo shoot with the Edmonton Sun and the winner will be crowned Nov. 12.

Miss Rodeo Canada's responsibilities will include attending rodeos from British Columbia to Manitoba, representing the Canadian Professional Rodeo Association and the sport of rodeo in general, and attending the U.S. National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas.

Labelled as the Millennium Edition, it's market value is approximately $1,000, and it will be on display at the hospital in mid to late November.

Tickets are being sold at Didsbury Drugs or through any member of the board of the Rosebud Health Foundation, and are $2 each or $5 for three.

The draw will take place during Midnight Madness at a booth in the Didsbury Elks Hall. To purchase tickets or to help sell them, see Margaret Baril at Didsbury Drugs until Dec. 3.

Rosebud Health Foundation nativity scene

As a part of the upcoming Midnight Madness celebration in Didsbury, the Rosebud Health Foundation will once again be raffling off a nativity scene to raise funds for the foundation.

According to Margaret Baril, who is on the board of directors for the foundation, the funds raised this year will be used for a specific cause - a much-needed piece of equipment for palliative care patients.

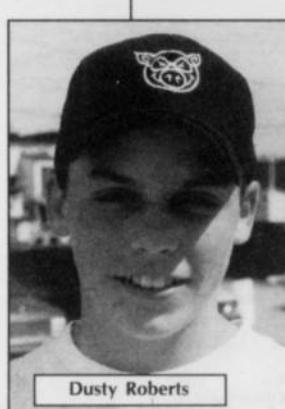

"It's called an aim pump, and it allows for better pain management at home," Baril said.

Baril says the foundation is hoping to raise enough to cover the whole cost of the aim pump, which is $4,500.

The nativity scene to be raffled off is a little larger than last year's, and is made by Fontanini.

The draw will take place during Midnight Madness at a booth in the Didsbury Elks Hall.

To purchase tickets or to help sell them, see Margaret Baril at Didsbury Drugs until Dec. 3.

Dusty Roberts

Didsbury High School student to compete in the Canadian Finals Rodeo

Dusty Roberts, a 13-year-old DHS student, will be travelling to Edmonton the second week in November to compete in the boys steer riding event at the Canadian Finals Rodeo.

Roberts will be competing against five others in the event, and the winner stands to collect some great prizes including money, a buckle, trophy spurs, and a pen-and-ink drawing.

Roberts, who plays hockey and snowboards in the off-season, has been competing in steer riding events for three years, with this as his first year in the pro circuit.

With a full season of about 30 rodeos, Roberts placed well at about half to get to the finals.

He says he has good support behind him, with his family attending most of the rodeos close to home and travelling with him to many others.

Just for making it to the finals, Roberts will be awarded with a new coat, clothes and boots, and he thinks he has a pretty good chance at bringing home even more than that.

The Canadian Finals Rodeo is slated to be held Nov. 6-14 at the Edmonton Skyreach Centre.

BOOSTING PRODUCTIVITY

OCTOBER 24-30, 1999

Boosting Productivity@SmallBusinessWeek1999

Small Business Week: event organized for the past 20 years by the Business Development Bank of Canada, in partnership with the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and many companies and institutions.

While large conglomerates merge and streamline, small businesses are multiplying and flourish while still spearheading job creation in Canada and many other industrialized countries.

The theme of the 1999 Small Business Week is productivity. Productivity is and will remain a national challenge in Canada, and the companies that shape our economy are already feeling the impact of our low productivity, especially in the small business manufacturing sector.

According to acting president and interim chief executive officer of the Business Development Bank of Canada, Bernie Schroder, "this is a great challenge that is vital for our economy and everyone's well-being. Improving our companies' productivity is imperative and the only way to guarantee our growth and improve the standard of living of all Canadians from coast to coast."

To do this, we already have many assets right here - abundant natural resources, an enormous technology pool, and brains trained by a network of world renowned colleges, specialized schools and universities. This pool of high-quality intellectual resources will be the cornerstone of our future success.

We also enjoy a treaty that gives us on-going, free access to the most dynamic market in the world - the United States. However, this tempting market that NAFTA has made more accessible to Canadian exporters is home to industries and businesses among the most productive in the world.

"Our own country is open to this powerful competition, continued the BDC president, and our exporters must compete with the most productive, innovative and efficient U.S. and foreign small businesses."

According to a recent study by the Conference Board of Canada, for example, between 1990 and 1998, the productivity of U.S. manufacturers grew by more than the gains recorded by the Canadian manufacturing sector during the same period.

And in 1990, we were already lagging behind the United States in terms of the productivity of our businesses. We must therefore act quickly and on a massive scale.

We are pleased to introduce to you many of the small businesses of Didsbury. When you need a service, a product, or just some friendly advice, you'll find a helping hand right here at home.

Arpeggio, Crescendo, Treblecleff and Staccato are some terms we adults may not know but your children might. The program Music for Young Children is an innovative and interactive way for parents and their children to learn music together. Carol Tucker, who has been teaching music for nine years believes the program is an excellent way for children to "build a foundation in music." Piano, theory and rhythm are just some of the elements kids can learn in an hour session with parents or half hour private lesson. Children can learn music through workbooks, sing-alongs, and hands on practice allowing children to learn music the way they would learn a new game. Lessons run from September to May with two recitals, one at Christmas and another towards the end of May.

Carol and Mrs. Treblecleff invite you to come and see for yourself the rewards of learning with Music For Young Children.

BOOSTING PRODUCTIVITY

OCTOBER 24-30, 1999

1999 Small Business Week

For the past 20 years, the end of October has had special significance for small business owners across Canada, and for the Business Development Bank of Canada. This is the time of year when BDC and the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, together with other sponsors, organize Small Business Week. This event began on a modest scale but with a lot of good will in British Columbia and has paid tribute to entrepreneurship ever since. It now attracts tens of thousands of business people every year to events held in every region of Canada during Small Business Week. BDC acting president and chief executive officer Bernie Schroder recalls the early days: "BDC branches in the lower Fraser valley were approached by the leaders of some small businesses and decided to pool their resources. In 1979, they organized information sessions about small business management under the theme Small Business Week".

Although at the beginning the main reason these branches got together was to save money and optimize limited resources, it did not take them long to realize that they had put their finger on a remarkable phenomenon. "In addition to wanting to learn how to manage their companies better, the small business leaders also wanted to get together and attract public attention," added the president.

Small business leaders wanted everyone to realize how much economic weight they had, how many jobs they created, which jobs they created, which products they developed and which new markets they were exploring. Above all, they wanted to tell people that small businesses were here to stay, and that their leaders were just as determined, daring and innovative as the leaders of large companies.

Following their success in 1979, the British Columbia branches organized the 1980 Small Business Week and tripled the number of sessions offered to local entrepreneurs. Since this event was so successful and to meet growing demand, in 1981 BDC organized a nationwide event with the support of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Since then, the Business Development Bank of Canada, in conjunction with the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and local organizations, have organized trade fairs and shows, workshops, seminars, lunches, awards ceremonies and many other activities.

By Nicole Smith

Last week a new business opened in town, the likes of which Didsbury hasn't seen in quite some time.

Didsbury Photo, owned and operated by Linda Artindale, is the first same-day photo finishing service that our town has seen in a number of years.

The people of Didsbury must like this type of service, because since her official opening on Oct. 18, Artindale has been quite busy.

"The business is building fast," said Artindale.

This is the first business of this kind that Artindale has owned, but not the first time she's worked behind a processor.

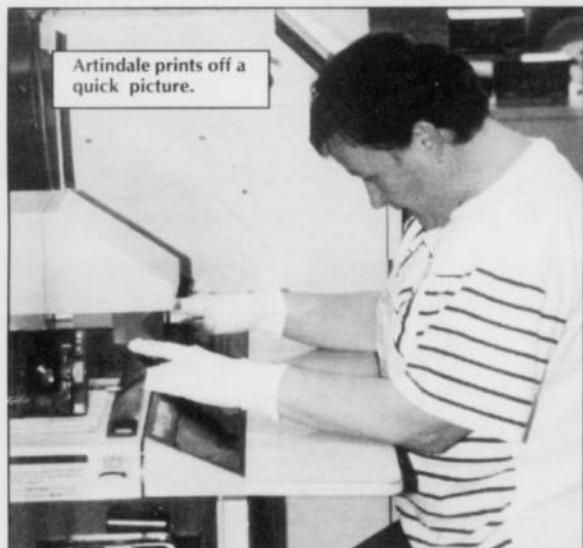

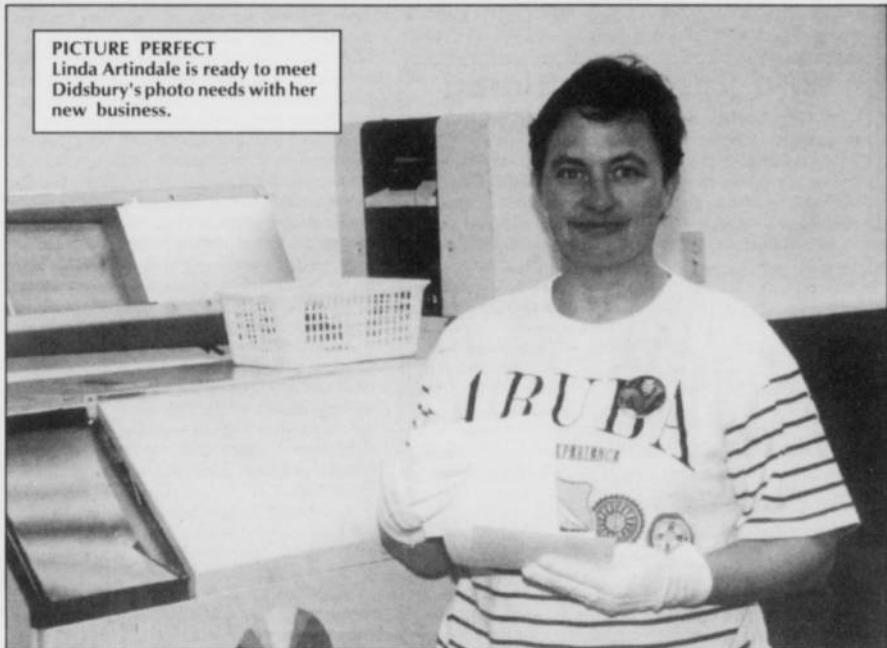

She used to work at a similar business that was in Didsbury a few years ago doing the film developing there.

Artindale says that the reason she decided to open this business was because she enjoys interaction with people so much.

"I enjoy people and I enjoy getting out and talking to people," she said.

And so far, people seem to be happy with the product that she is putting out there.

PICTURE PERFECT

Artindale uses high quality equipment that she bought recently to do her processing.

The prices at Didsbury Photo are competitive with the least expensive processing shops both here and in Olds.

Artindale has a good selection of film for sale, including a black and white film that can be run through a colour processing machine, like the one that she uses.

Artindale will also be selling a wide variety of picture frames, which she says should be arriving any day.

"It's going to take a while for people to know we're here," she said of the shop, located next door to the bakery in the old Mutual Life office.

Artindale has a special on right now for Halloween.

She says to bring your child in all dressed up in his or her costume and Linda's husband, Doug, will take a 5x7 picture. The cost is just $3 for the print, and all proceeds go to the Justin Artindale Memorial Fund. Justin is Artindale's son who tragically died in a car accident this past year.

Another special that she's offering her customers is five rolls of film and developing for $45, including tax.

Stop by Didsbury Photo and see what develops. Artindale's sure you'll be happy.

Olds College Centre for Innovation

Ty Lund, Alberta Minister of Agriculture, Food and Rural Development and Dr. Rob Turner, president and CEO Olds College, laser scanned the ear tag on a calf, and in so doing, officially declared Olds College Centre for Innovation open for business.

The leading edge ear-tag laser technology is just one of the innovations being incubated at Olds College Centre for Innovation.

The newly formed incubator is nurturing innovation, learning, and applied commercialization for western Canada's agri-business industry.

"Making applied research work for commercial application is familiar ground for Olds College," says Dr. Rob Turner, president and CEO Olds College.

"Our culture as a post-secondary centre of learning is built on strategic partnerships with the very industries that hire our students. We have the facilities, the people, the network, and the environment to blend applied research and innovation with market realities."

Two programs are driving the OCCI focus - Innovation for Agri-Business and Applied Research and Commercialization. Over 20 projects are into the development stage.

OCCI is fuelled by public and private sector investment. Initially, about 60% of the centre's activities are being publicly funded with the balance contracted research from private industry.

OCCI is a wholly owned subsidiary of Olds College.

Agricore announces year-end results for Alberta farmers

In its first full year of operation, Agricore, the agri-business formed by last fall's merger of Alberta Pool and Manitoba Pool Elevators, earned $12 million before merger expenses and taxes.

"After covering all of our merger costs, we still managed to make a profit in a difficult year," says Agricore's chief executive officer Gord Cummings.

After deducting merger costs, income taxes and adjustments to prior year patronage allocations, Agricore achieved net earnings of $2.9 million. Although the earnings are less than the combined prior year's earnings of Alberta Pool and Manitoba Pool Elevators, Cummings says Agricore's funds from operations were still an impressive $44.5 million.

1998-99 was one of the most challenging years in recent history with commodity prices at 25-year lows. The reduced volume of grain movement and the large number of unseeded acres in Manitoba and Saskatchewan also weighed heavily on Agricore's returns.

"It was a difficult year for us, our farmer owners and the grain industry," says Agricore president Charlie Swanson. "But we managed to finish a tough year in a positive position after the merger of two strong companies."

Despite the lower earnings, Swanson says he's pleased with the direction in which the organization is heading. "Our capital spending totalled $177 million in 1999 and we will make further strategic investments in the coming year that will position us well for the future."

Agricore is the Canadian, farmer-owned agri-business created in 1998 by the merger of Manitoba Pool Elevators and Alberta Pool. Agricore provides fully integrated grain and special crops marketing and handling services through its prairie-wide network of elevators and specialized processing plants. Agricore also handles a full range of agronomic inputs, supplies and services through retail outlets across western Canada.

Plan to broaden potential for CWB

All Prairie farmers, regardless of where they farm in western Canada, can participate in New Generation Cooperatives through an innovative "stock switching" plan approved by the board of directors last week.

New Generation Cooperatives (NGCs) are mainly value-added processing plants where the farmer members deliver their own products in proportion to the number of shares they hold. An example is Prairie Pasta Producers (PPP), a group of farmers examining the feasibility of building an NGC pasta plant in Weyburn, Saskatchewan.

"A farmer in Lethbridge, Alberta could be an investor of a new generation co-op in southern Saskatchewan under this plan," said Ken Ritter, board chair. "If the farmer is obliged to deliver 30 tonnes against his NGC shares, he or she could deliver that wheat to the elevator in Lethbridge and the CWB would record that as a delivery against the shares held in the co-op. The NGC processor, in turn, would source the same volume and quality of grain from the local area."

Ritter said the NGC stock-switching plan should be attractive to PPP because it increases the number of potential investors from only those living reasonably close to the proposed building site to the more than 100,000 farmers who hold CWB permit books.

Ritter says the CWB's new plan demonstrates how a single-desk selling environment can assist farmers who want to add value to their crops.

"Under the CWB pooling system, an NGC can attract producer investment from all over the prairies instead of just from the local catchment area which would be the case in an open market system."

Discussion on broadening the pool of investors first occurred during the working group meetings involving PPP, the CWB, the Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities, (SARM) and Keystone Agricultural Producers (KAP). The working group's next meeting is Oct. 27 in Regina.

The CWB is the world's largest wheat and barley marketer. Headquartered in Winnipeg, Manitoba, it is one of Canada's biggest exporters and the largest net earner of foreign currency. Marketing prairie-grown wheat and barley to over 70 countries around the world, the CWB returns all sales revenue, less the costs of marketing, to farmers in western Canada.

Arason back at helm of CWB for another year

Ralph Goodale, minister responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board (CWB), announced on Oct. 18 the re-appointment of Greg S. Arason as president and chief executive officer of the CWB.

Arason has been in the top post with the CWB since Dec. 1998 as the transitional president and CEO.

This announcement confirms Arason's position for a further one-year term.

"As required by legislation, this appointment has been made after close consultation with the CWB's board of directors," Goodale said.

Arason has played an important role in providing sound leadership and expertise to the CWB under its new governance structure and during a period of enormous change."

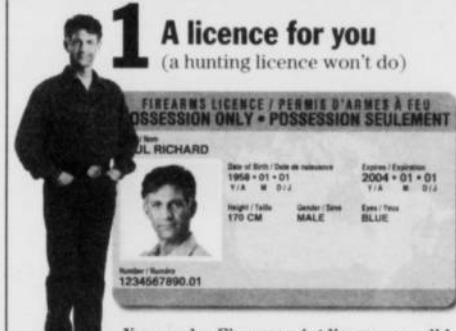

Arason is the former CEO of Manitoba Pool Elevators (MPE) and past director of several grain and food operations including Prince Rupert Grain Ltd and Canamerica Foods Ltd.

He has been involved in the prairie grain industry for more than 25 years and played a major part in guiding MPE successfully through several years of significant agricultural change.

His business acumen is credited with helping MPE achieve earnings of $38 million and being named the top business in the province in 1998.

He was educated at the University of Manitoba, and the Banff School of Advanced Management.

CWB bulletin

At a glance:

The CWB approved a plan to broaden investment potential for New Generation Cooperatives at its meeting in Winnipeg last week. Under the plan, farmers living outside of the natural catchment area of the co-op could deliver at a local elevator but have the CWB record that has a delivery against shares held in the co-op. New Generation Cooperatives are mainly value-added processing plants where farmer members deliver their own products in proportion to the number of shares they hold.

From elevator to port:

Rail car unloads (for week 11, week ending Oct. 17) for all grains were 2,763 at Vancouver (target: 3,300) and 267 at Prince Rupert (target: 1,200). Rail car unloads at Thunder Bay totalled 2,064 cars (target: 2,320). Unloads at Churchill were 546 cars.

Primary elevator space for week 11 was 15% compared to 14% the week before. Manitoba elevators averaged 19% space, Saskatchewan elevators averaged 15% space and Alberta elevators averaged 11% space.

Potpourri:

Cool, damp conditions across the Prairie region limited harvest progress last week. The heaviest rains fell in the eastern Prairies, but scattered showers kept progress slow in western regions as well.

Overall harvest progress is now estimated at 95% complete. One week of good weather is still needed to bring harvest to a conclusion.

The results of the CWB's 1999 variety survey are posted on the website at www.cwb.ca. This is the second year the CWB has published this survey, which covers wheat, durum wheat, malting barley, hulless barley and feed barley. The survey will provide the CWB and the grain industry with valuable information about the popularity and location of different varieties of grain across the Prairies. The survey was mailed to all CWB permit book holders in June and farmers were asked to reply by Oct. 1. The response was overwhelming, with over 22,000 respondents.

For immediate release:

A final ruling from the United States Department of Commerce confirms that the marketing activities of the CWB do not constitute a subsidy to Canadian producers of live cattle. Yesterday's decision upholds the preliminary ruling of May 4, 1999.

"...we determine that the operations of the CWB did not provide a benefit to the producer of live cattle during the period of investigation. Therefore, we determine that the operations of the CWB during the period of investigation did not provide an indirect countervailable subsidy," the ruling read.

The U.S. Department of Commerce was investigating anti-dumping and countervailing duty petitions filed by the U.S.-based Ranchers-Cattlemen's Action Legal Fund (R-CALF), calling for the U.S. government to impose trade restrictions on imports of Canadian cattle.

In the countervailing duty petition, R-CALF claimed the CWB acts as a subsidy to Canadian cattle producers by restricting feed barley exports, thereby keeping domestic barley prices artificially low.

In coming to its decision, the U.S. Department of Commerce made numerous price comparisons between Canadian domestic prices, U.S. domestic prices and the CWB export price to the U.S.

In each of its comparisons, the Department of Commerce either found "no consistent pattern" of Canadian prices being low or "the Canadian price was often higher than the U.S. price."

This latest investigation was the eighth time the U.S. has scrutinized the marketing activities of the CWB and the eighth time that the study has found the CWB to be a fair trader.

Government will continue to fight for cattle producers

The Alberta government is unhappy with the final anti-dumping rule by the United States Department of Commerce in its investigation of Canadian cattle imports.

In an Oct. 13 decision, the Department of Commerce upheld a preliminary ruling that certain Canadian exporters were selling cattle into U.S. markets at less than fair value. As a result, a provisional anti-dumping duty averaging 5.63% of the value of each animal exported will be imposed on shipments of live cattle (excluding breeding cattle) to the U.S.

"Alberta is very disappointed with this ruling," said Ty Lund, Minister of Agriculture, Food and Rural Development. "Any suggestion that Canadian cattle were responsible for low prices in the U.S. is unfounded. The North American cattle industry is a single, fully-integrated market. The Canadian cattle industry is competing fairly and not dumping product into the U.S. market."

The anti-dumping decision stems from trade investigations launched last December, in response to two petitions filed by the Ranchers-Cattlemen Action Legal Foundation (R-CALF), a coalition of U.S. ranchers. R-CALF alleged two things: Canadian cattle producers were dumping cattle into the U.S. market, and Canadian cattle producers were unfairly subsidized, thus bringing an end to the countervailing investigation.

The anti-dumping case will now proceed to the U.S. International Trade Commission (ITC) for a final injury determination.

If the ITC finds that imports from Canada have injured or threatened to injure the U.S. industry, final anti-dumping duties will be imposed on Canadian cattle imports. The final injury determination is expected late November.

"This case is not over yet. We will continue to work closely with the cattle industry, other provinces and the federal government as this investigation proceeds to the final phase," said Lund. "We are confident that the evidence will clearly show the U.S. industry has not been injured by imports from Canada."

"This ruling is particularly disappointing, as it comes at a time when Canada and the United States are working hard to facilitate, not block, two-way trade," said Shirley McClellan, Minister of International and Intergovernmental Relations. "The anti-dumping ruling is a setback to Canada-U.S. trade relations."

"Canada has access to the dispute resolution mechanisms of the North American Free Trade Agreement and the World Trade Organization," added McClellan.

"If the final outcome of this case is not in our favour, we expect they will be used."

Renting grain storage

Grain storage and the rental of grain bins is always a subject that comes up in the fall. Unfortunately, there is not a ready market place to determine what rent should be.

"A few years ago, one of Alberta Agriculture, Food and Rural Development financial specialists worked out some average grain-storage values. To cover all costs, a standard point of rent-value for grain bins could be set at between 10 to 20 cents per bushel, depending on the size of the bin and its features, such as a hopper bottoms," says Gordon Frank, crop specialist with Alberta Agriculture, Food and Rural development, Brooks. "This rate can vary greatly from this range, however.

Farmers often trade storage for other barter. The so-called 'good-neighbour' rate could vary in some instances. Some farmers are also willing to rent for less because depreciation and interest in the storage bins are the same whether full of grain or empty. In these cases, ownership costs are also calculated in and lower rates may be accepted and viewed as additional, unexpected revenue."

A reasonable rent calculation depends on a number of assumptions. Bin owners need to be concerned with depreciation, interest, repairs, taxes and insurance. Owners will want as much of these operating and ownership costs covered as they feel is reasonable.

"Repairs to bins are hard to determine, but should be considered," adds Frank. "It should be determined up-front which party is responsible for undue damage, such as if a door is backed into or a lid is torn off."

Simple calculations show that larger bins cost less per bushel of capacity and are likely to be rented for less cost per bushel. Very small bins also rent for less because of the extra labour required to fill and empty them.

The calculated values given here can be used as a starting point. Rates should then be modified to reflect local supply and demand along with the 'good-neighbour' influence," he said.

The Y2K computer bug on the family farm

By Bob Friesen, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture

My relationship with computers is cordial at best. Well into the so-called information age, I am still content to let my daughter download my e-mail messages. Our farm records are kept on computer and the accountant files our tax return online, so it is not a case of techno-phobia.

Like so many farmers, I didn't grow up with this technology. It just isn't as familiar as the engine of my truck or the generator in the barn. Yet, I use it and often take it for granted that it will work.

The Y2K computer bug is an interesting problem for farmers. Canadians want assurances that their food supply is not going to be put at risk. Farmers owe it to them to ensure that this is indeed the case. The only way to do this is to go through the five steps of look, list, prioritize, investigate and, if necessary, replace equipment at risk.

For many farmers, the on-farm risk linked with Y2K is quite low. Cash crop operations are not in production on Jan. 1. Most at risk are greenhouse and livestock operations where temperature control and timing are critical. Storage facilities for milk, potatoes, and eggs, are also areas of concern. Thermostats, light timers, cooling tanks, irrigation systems, humidity controls, etc. where a computer chip is involved should be checked.

The fact that many of the so-called "critical" procedures (feeding, milking, temperature control) can be done manually or mechanically has led many farmers to delay their Y2K planning. As of last summer, as many as half of the country's farmers had still done nothing to prepare their farms for this computer problem. Most plan to wait until the end of the year before taking action.

While this may allow farmers enough time to prepare their own operations, it doesn't allow enough time to plan for "other people's Y2K problems."

Ask questions, get answers (in writing), and get ready for 2000.

Building contingency plans to deal with "other people's Y2K problems" takes time. Locating alternative supplies, budgeting for extra costs, and planning to deal with any number of glitches could make the difference between a happy new year and a winter nightmare.

It is easy to dismiss Y2K, especially when computers are something many of us prefer to let other people worry about. We can't all be experts, but we can find the experts and the advice we need.

Ask questions, get answers (in writing), and get ready for 2000.

Warning: ergot found in feed grains recently

There have been several reports from various parts of the province of the presence of ergot in this year's crops of wheat, barley and triticale.

"This is not a surprising occurrence, considering the wet cool spring weather we had this year," says Sam Jaikaran, swine nutritionist with Alberta Agriculture, Food and Rural Development, Edmonton.

"These conditions were very conducive to infection in cereal crops at the flowering stage by the ergot fungus, Claviceps purpurea. Dark-coloured sclerotia (ergot bodies) form in the head as the crop matures. Sclerotia contains chemicals that are powerful toxins to animals."

The feeding of ergot causes swift and debilitating reactions in livestock. All classes are affected. The toxins in ergot are mainly alkaloids and amines, which cause restriction of small blood vessels and psychotic behaviour in livestock.

Restriction of blood vessels results in spontaneous abortions of pregnant animals and cessation of milk production. Gangrene of the extremities of limbs and tails of animals is common when ergot-infested feed is fed over an extended period of time.

When the feed contains ergot, feed intake is severely reduced and animals may show some of the following symptoms: vomiting, diarrhea, abdominal cramps, respiratory distress, salivation, convulsions, lack of coordination, depression and even death.

"The feeding of ergot-infested grain must be carefully controlled," says Jaikaran.

"The limit of ergot bodies must be no more than one ergot body per 1000 kernels of grain. Preferably, no ergot should be given to reproducing females. Cereal grains should be carefully inspected before feed is made because there is no easy way to detect ergot after it is ground into feed."

Mountain View Colts on top of their game

Thursday, Oct. 21, the Colts travelled to Innisfail, where they put up a good fight but lost 4-3.

They failed to show up for the first period and a half, giving Innisfail a chance to score twice before the Colts would rebound with a goal of their own, by Ross Neven assisted by Chad Pappas and Jeff Miller.

Third period action saw the Colts come out strong, shooting on the net at every turn. The awesome goaltending of Innisfail prevented us from scoring more than our two goals this period, one was by Ken Swanson assisted by Rob Collinge and Ross Neven.

The other was scored with only 55 seconds remaining in the period, Ross Neven's second of the night, assisted by Ken Swanson and Stephen McGinn. Netminding for this game was by Justin Pross.

Friday, Oct. 22 they travelled to Banff where they came to play a full 60 minutes of hockey, in the end beating Banff 9-3.

First period action saw the Colts score four times - by Ken Swanson unassisted, Rob Collinge assisted by Per Nordgren, Stephen McGinn assisted by Trent van Dam, and Chad Pappas assisted by Steve Westlund and Jeff Miller.

Second period saw the play seesaw back and forth with Banff scoring, then the Colts by Greg McMullen unassisted. Banff then scored again, with the Colts answering back with a goal by Jason Spreeman assisted by Trent van Dam.

Third period, the Colts remained strong scoring three more times by Ken Swanson assisted by Trent van Dam and Rob Collinge, Rob Collinge assisted by Jeff Miller, and by Jason Spreeman unassisted. Paul Gill did an outstanding job in net for this game.

The Colts' next games are Friday, Oct. 29 away to Eckville and Saturday, Oct. 30 home to Ponoka.

Grizzlys improving on defensive play

By Barry Williams

In a league where goals can be a dime a dozen, solid defensive play will win games.

After having their four-game undefeated streak broken last weekend by the Crowsnest Pass Timberwolves, the Olds Grizzlys have returned to solid defensive play to post three decisive victories in Alberta Junior Hockey League play last week.

Playing at the Father David Bauer Arena in Calgary on Wednesday, Oct. 20, the Grizzlys upset the Calgary Royals 4-3, while on Saturday, Oct. 23, playing before a noisy partisan crowd at the Olds Sportsplex, the Grizzlys skated to an 8-3 victory over the St. Albert Saints.

Then, on Sunday, Oct. 24, the Grizzlys upended the Fort McMurray Oil Barons 3-2 before a large crowd at the Sportsplex.

The wins vaulted the Grizzlys into third place in the competitive Cantele AT & T south division standings.

Against the Royals, the Grizzlys were down 2-0 within two minutes of play, but battled back outscoring the Royals 4-1 in the remainder of the game thanks mainly to a solid effort by netminder Shaun Lee, who blocked 38 potent Royals' shots to preserve the win for the Grizzlys.

"We received an outstanding effort from Lee, who made some key saves to keep us in the game," said Grizzlys' head coach and general manager Garry Van Hereweghe.

"It was pretty obvious we were not mentally prepared to play against the Royals as they dominated us in the first two minutes of the game," added Van Hereweghe, noting the Grizzlys regrouped and played fairly solid for the rest of the game.

Meanwhile, against the Saints, the Grizzlys proved they were ready to play as they jumped into an early 2-0 lead. However, by the end of the first period, the Saints had deadlocked the score at two goals apiece.

A five-goal outburst in the second period by the Grizzlys solidified the victory.

"Except for a brief period in the first period, where we played sloppy in our own end, our defensive play was certainly improved," explained Van Hereweghe, indicating the defencemen were moving the puck quickly out of their own end and jumping into the play to contribute offensively.

Sparked by another stellar performance by netminder Lee, the Grizzlys built an early 3-0 lead and held on for the victory against Fort McMurray.

"Because of Fort McMurray's explosive offensive threat, they are a difficult team to protect a lead against," said Van Hereweghe.

In all three games, the Grizzlys concentrated on improving their defensive play and the results of their efforts turned into needed wins.

"When our defence is controlling our own end and moving the puck out, it makes the transition game easier," added Van Hereweghe, noting the coaching staff is pleased the goals against average is coming down.

In the past three games, the coaching staff has noticed an improvement in the power play as they are denting the twine on a regular basis, which has been a contributing factor in the latest victories.

"Our power play has been motivated and aggressive," said Van Hereweghe indicating they are benefiting from their scoring opportunities.

"As long as we concentrate on playing sound defensive hockey and capitalize on our scoring opportunities, we should keep on winning," concluded Van Hereweghe.

The Grizzlys now have won six out of their last seven games and are staying within the top of the south division.

Grizzlys next home action is on Nov. 5 against the Sherwood Park Crusaders and on Nov. 6 with Grande Prairie providing the opposition.

FEVER PITCH

By Frank Pavlick

Baseball isn't baseball when the playoffs come around,

Then baseball is a statement of whole season on the mound.

October pennant fever that each baseball fan fights through,

Not just some normal sickness but wild beats hearts have to do.

Nothing about sex, race or creed or where someone resides,

It's playoffs, making far out feelings of a fan's insides.

Of course this time of year the umpires look ten times as blind,

And moves that normally mean squat play havoc with the mind.

That's just the playoffs, was and it has always been like that,

When any human heart beats to horsehide and baseball bat.

No matter which team makes the grade, October every fall,

Brings on that Series Fever, until one team wins it all.

Many area cowboys are vying for NFR qualification

By Barry Williams

Three area cowboys could be trekking towards the bright lights of Las Vegas, Nevada.

After months of travelling from one rodeo to another in the United States, the three, Bill Boyd of Olds, Glen O'Neill of Water Valley and Robbie Bell of Water Valley are among the top 15 event contestants in the Crown Royal World Standings as compiled by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, the governing body for sanctioned rodeos across the United States and in Canada.

Only the top 15 ranked contestants in each major event at season's end qualify to compete at the 1.4 million dollar National Finals Rodeo being held in Las Vegas from Dec. 3-12.

With just six rodeos left in the current 1999 schedule, O'Neill, with season earnings of $89,312, has already qualified for the year-end extravaganza.

"This is my fifth consecutive time I have qualified for the National Finals Rodeo," said O'Neill, a native of Kemptsey Australia.

O'Neill has been a regular on the North American rodeo circuit for five years and has been ranked within the top five every year at the NFR.

"I kind of had a slow start to the season this year," said O'Neill.

"But, after I got things turned around, the summer went really well," he added, noting his riding has been fairly consistent of late.

A former $50,000 winner at the Calgary Stampede, O'Neill set an event CPRA earnings record last year winning $50,442 and finished second at the Canadian Finals Rodeo. He also shares the CPRA record for the highest marked saddle bronc score, a 95 achieved in 1996 on Franklin Rodeo's Airwolf at the Daines Ranch Rodeo held in Innisfail.

Besides achieving his personal goal of qualifying for both the NFR and CFR, O'Neill's most memorable highlight this year was winning the Kalispell rodeo by spurring out a 92, one of the highest scores attained at a rodeo in the States this year.

Meanwhile, Boyd, a two-time Canadian bareback riding champion, is ranked thirteenth in the world bareback standings with earnings of $46,725. For the next three weeks, Boyd will be attempting to spur out more money as he attempts to ride at the NFR for a fifth time.

"This might be the best year I have ever had," said Boyd, who led the CPRA seasonal bareback standings with over $24,000 in earnings.

"All year, especially in Canada, I have been fairly consistent in my riding," added Boyd, who won most every series on Canadian soil including the Alberta Professional Rodeo Association championship, the Dodge Series championship, the Coors Chute Out championship and the Skoal Inc. championship.

"I am still hanging on in the world standings," said Boyd, noting he has had fairly good results at the United States rodeos.

"I definitely have a chance at making it to the NFR," he added.

"My goal is to qualify for the NFR and I am going to stick to it," noted Boyd.

"It has been a fairly steady run down in the States," Boyd indicated.

After a $5,000 victory in the bull riding event at the Heart of Texas Rodeo in Waco, Texas, Bell has moved into fourteenth place in the world bull riding standings with earnings of $53,094.

A former British Columbia High School Rodeo Association bull riding champion, Bell is riding towards his first NFR appearance and his second consecutive ride at the CFR.

Calgary steer wrestler Lee Graves, with earnings of $81,000 leads the world standings and saddle bronc rider Rod Hay, of Wildwood, Alberta, leads all riders with $110,000 neatly tucked in the pocket of his Wrangler jeans.

When the chutes open for the NFR, Canadian competitors will be proudly representing our country.

Curling is underway

By Marge St. Clair

The Green Spiel opened the season and the curling rink was a beehive of activity the last three evenings. People must be ready to curl; we had curlers from Calgary, Cremona, Olds, Didsbury and the whole district around us.

This was a three-game total point system and the points tallied up in this order:

1. Jim and Bev Wilson, Ray and Arlene Herrick
2. Mark and Dana Baron, Carson and Marianne Schultz
3. Marlene Fizer, Wanda Mudry, Karen Trofimuk, Vicki Lodermeier

4. Harry Reese, Barry Reese, Bob Monteith, Greg Reese
5. Nick Baran, Jan Myhre, Jim Myhre, Linda Baran, (Lloyd Divine)

6. Bruce Smith, Jan Woolnough, Klaus Riemer, Diane Stickney, (Bruce Wiebe)
7. Lyle Jacobs, Brenda Scott, Kathy Jacobs, Marlene Farquharson.

8. Stan and Shirley Laveck, John and Elaine Rusling.

A great time of socializing was enjoyed by all, it was great to meet so many new people who are taking part in league play.

All leagues will begin the schedules on Monday, Oct. 25 with the Seniors at 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Mixed - Monday evening at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. and Wednesday evening at 9 p.m.

Olds College hosts Intercollegiate rodeo

By Barry Williams

Collegiate cowboys and cowgirls were riding and roping at the Olds College Riding Arena last weekend.

The Olds College Rodeo Club hosted the first rodeo of the Canadian Intercollegiate Rodeo Association season from Oct. 16-17, the first of eight scheduled for the year, which lasts until April.

When the dust settled in the Arena infield, the Olds College Rodeo Club contestants were celebrating as Olds topped the six team event by scoring 905 team points.

Four-event competitor, Jeremy Hardin of the Olds College Rodeo Club claimed the all-around championship by capturing the saddle bronc competition and placing in three other events.

"Most of our contestants did very well at this rodeo," said Olds College Rodeo Club coach Dale Butterwick.

According to Butterwick, about 60 of the 100 members of the rodeo club participated at the rodeo, which drew contestants from Lakeland College, the second-place team, as well as Red Deer, Lethbridge, Calgary, Saskatoon, and the host club Olds.

"The decision to compete at these rodeos is left up to the individual members of the club," said Butterwick, indicating it is not compulsory for them to attend every rodeo.

"Sometimes independent competitors enter the rodeos," added Butterwick, noting all contestants at the Olds Rodeo were collegiate club members.

Stock for the rodeo was supplied by the Calgary Stampede, Bert Pengally and Kelly Armstrong.

Although most members of the Olds College Rodeo Club have experience in competing at amateur rodeos, some participants are trying the sport on a competitive basis for the first time.

The greenhorns are taught the sport through a series of weekly practices at the riding arena.

"Most of the club members who have rodeo experience assist in teaching the different rodeo events."

"The rodeo club has scheduled several clinics, where former current and professional contestants come out and teach the club members," added Butterwick.

At the conclusion of the rodeo season, the top contestants in each event compete at the Intercollegiate Finals Rodeo to determine a circuit champion.

This year the finals will be held in Olds from April 8-10, 2000.

Butterwick noted that although most colleges are too small to offer rodeo scholarships to their students, Olds College has started a scholarship program this year with four members receiving $1,000 scholarships.

"Hopefully the offering of these small scholarships will strengthen the rodeo program at the college," concluded Butterwick.
